

Conflict of Interest (Col) Statement

1. Each Research Grant Review Committee (RGRC) member has to be as explicit and transparent as possible when it comes to declaring a conflict of interest (Col), and declare, from the outset, if they have a Col.
2. Where a RGRC member is an applicant or co-applicant on a grant application, he or she must declare an interest and withdraw from assessing any of the applications. That member will not receive documents pertaining to the applications, learn the identity of any referees or receive referees' reports. He or she must retire from the part of meeting when the applications are being assessed. This should also apply to trustees who serve as RGRC members and are applicants in the grant round.
3. Where the Chair of is an applicant or co-applicant on a grant application, he or she must declare an interest and should not be involved in that session of the meeting. A Vice-Chair will chair the meeting to prevent any undue influence.
4. RGRC members who could be seen as a direct competitor of the applicant (e.g. they are funded or applying for funding on a similar project to the proposal under discussion) may be asked to withdraw from the meeting for that application, or may be allowed to stay, but not vote on the application.
5. RGRC members who have collaborated or published with the grant applicant(s) within the past three years, should make a declaration if they consider themselves to have a Col.
6. RGRC members who work at the same institution as the grant applicant(s), should make a declaration if they consider themselves to have a Col.

RGRC members should bear in mind that if a) the content of the application is completely outside their area of interest and/or b) they are not acquainted at all with the applicant(s) at their Institution, they may decide not to declare a Col. However, if the RGRC member does declare an interest, then they may be asked to withdraw from the meeting for that application, or may be allowed to stay, but not vote on the application.

7. Meeting papers (including minutes and agendas) and related correspondence, all application documents, and contact and personal details provided as part of an application (including those of external peer reviewers), are to be considered strictly confidential and should not be shared with persons outside of the Committee.
8. If a RGRC member (including serving Trustees) is approached by an applicant for technical advice on an application, they may provide advice, but must make a declaration for a potential Col. They may subsequently be asked by the Chair to absent themselves from future discussions of the application concerned.
